THE LA FOLLETTE FILIBUSTER COLLAPSES AND CONGRESS ADJOURNS AFTER A LONG AND MOST REMARKABLE SESSION

Walter Wellman's Story of "Little Bob's" Fight a Classic of Political History

Filibuster Defeated by Aldrich's Cunning; Currency Commission is Organized

In the belief that nothing in the literature of fact or fiction of the times excels in dramatic interest the description of the La Follette filibuster against the Aldrich-Vreeland bill which Walter Wellman, the distinguished journalist, published in the Record-Herald of Saturday and Sunday, The Tribune reproduces both articles in the sequence of their occurrence. Here are portrayed the power and daring of La Follette, the chagrin—for a time—of his adversaries, the cunning and not too nice trickery of the Aldrich resulting in the final triumph of the latter. In it also is given a clearer insight into the workings of the United States senate than can ordinarily be gathered from reading of senatorial procedure. The La Follette filibuster will go down in history as one of the most notable events in annals of the upper house, and Mr. Wellman's portrayal of the affair deserves to become a classic. It is as follows:

WALTER WELLMAN.

Journalist Whose Story of La Follette Filibuster Follows.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.—The capitol today looks like a nearly deserted village. Every congressman who could pack up in time left town on the first train yesterday. The congressional record for today is bulky. It contains a large number of speeches under rule allowing members to print remarks never delivered on the house floor. The La Follette filibuster had kept many speeches out before adjournment. Many democrats followed the example of their leader, Williams, by apologizing for using the record after having voted against a resolution authorizing it.

The special currency commission has organized by selecting Senator Aldrich president and Representative Vreeland, vice president. Arthur B. Sholton, clerk to the senate finance committee, was appointed clerk to the commission.

Senators Aldrich, Hale and Bailey and Representatives Vreeland, Burton and Padgett were named as a sub-committee to prepare plans for the work ahead of the commission. The sub-committee will meet at the Hotel Plaza, New York, June 11, to consider suggestions which its members will have looking to a division of the work and lines of investigation to be pursued. ... ...

WELLMAN'S STORY OF ALL NIGHT FIGHT

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(12:30 a. m.)—Horatius La Follette took the bridge at 12:30 yesterday afternoon and at 12:30 this morning he still balliantly holds it, and the currency bill has not crossed.

One of the most sensational filibusters known to the history of the United States senate was started yesterday afternoon by the senator from Wisconsin. Having secured the promise of help which he was seeking

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(5:00 p. m.)—Amid scenes of excitement well nigh unparalleled in the senate chamber, the La Follette filibuster collapsed a little after 4 o'clock this afternoon and the currency bill was passed by a vote of 43 to 22, four republican senators voting in the neg-

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND HIS CABINET IN THE ORDER OF THEIR SUCCESSION TO THE PRESIDENCY OF THE U. S.

Reading around the circle from left to right they are :Theodore Roosevelt, Charles W. Fairbanks, vice president; Elihu Root, department of state; George B. Cortelyou, department of the treasury; William H. Taft, department of war; Charles J. Bonaparte, department of Justice; Geo. Meyer, postoffice department; Victor H. Metcalf, department of the navy; James R. Garfield department of the interior; James Wilson, department of agriculture; Oscar S. Straus, department of commerce and labor.

The above picture shows the president, vice president and the members of the cabinet arranged in the order in which they would succeed to the presidency should the men high up die. This was a wise provision in the constitution, which may sometime be called upon to fill the white house chair. So far in our history it has never been necessary to call a member of the cabinet to the chair, but so many vice presidents have filled the unexpired term of president that it does not require a great stretch of imagination to conceive a condition in which Secretary Root or George B. Cortelyou might be put in the presidential chair through this automatic succession t o the presidency.

CLANS MOVE ON TO G.O.P. CONVENTION

BIG "BOSSES" ARE ARRIVING IN CHICAGO TODAY

CANDIDATES COMING SOON

Taft People Drafting Platform With Tariff Plank Uppermost—Many Contests On

CHICAGO, June 1.—Chicago today took the center of the national political stage when the "big bosses" began to arrive. By the end of the week the republican national convention will be practically under way with the hearings of delegate contests involving 229 seats. By tomorrow all the presidential candidates will have established headquarters here and the political wires will begin to vibrate. The Fairbanks and Hughes headquarters are already established. The Taft workers will be in full swing by evening. This afternoon Cannon's boom will arrive in the trail of Congressman McKinley, "Uncle Joe's" campaign manager.

La Follette is detained in Washington by unfinished work, but will be on hand shortly.

A tentative program for the national convention has been arranged, but the unprecedented number of seat contests threatens to upset it somewhat. On the first day, June 16, the opening prayer by Bishop Muldoon and "keynote" speech by Senator Burrows, temporary chairman, will occupy most of the day. Committees will also be named. The convention then will adjourn until the credentials committee reports.

The convention will probably convene again Thursday, if the committee is ready. At the second session a platform probably will be adopted.

The Taft people are writing their platform now and it is believed this will be accepted. The principal plank will be on tariff revision. This and the one endorsing the present administration may precipitate a debate. On the third day nominations will be made. Preparations are being made by the sub-committee on arrangements to expedite the hearing of seat contests. There are 229 contests as against 23 four years ago, the latter from Wisconsin, when the Spooner and La Follette factions held separate conventions.

MAYOR TO OPEN BIG FOOD EXHIBIT

LA CROSSE PEOPLE TO KNOW WHAT THEY EAT

BIG SHOW OPENS TONIGHT

Foodstuffs and Jobbed Goods Will be Shown to Public and Their Cleanliness Demonstrated

Mayor W. A. Anderson will officiate this evening at the opening of the big pure food show in the Park Roller rink on South Fifth street, and his address will mark the beginning of one of the most interesting exhibits ever held in this city.

La Crosse people may have confidence in the cleanliness of their grocers' wares, but they are now to have a chance to thoroughly look into the purity of purchased food, and there is no doubt that a meal will taste much more wholesome to most everyone after they have seen the absolute purity of the foodstuffs offered by La Crosse dealers.

The rink has been nicely decorated, and the week will no doubt prove a sort of fair and bazaar, especially for the ladies, as there will be demonstrators to exploit the various goods, and an hour spent at the show will be indeed a profitable and enjoyable one.

BOYS IN TRAIN HOLD-UP

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 1.—Three boys, oldest aged 17, led by 15-year-old Albert Hatch, held up and robbed a northbound Great Northern passenger train in the outskirts of this city. A passenger was shot in the leg. Hatch is a desperate youngster, and wanted to shoot the conductor. He also would have shot one of his pals for "cold feet" on the latter's declining to immediately engage in a nother hold-up. They are in jail and have confessed.

FLAG DROWNS AERONAUT

NEW YORK, June 1.—Ten thousand people saw Aeronaut Fred L. Wood drown in Passaic river at Hillside park, when in making a parachute descent after a balloon ascension he became entangled in a great flag he had carried, as he alighted in the river.

TO DEFER CIVIC AMALGAMATION

BOARD OF TRADE COMMITTEE DECIDES TO WAIT

TIME IS NOT NOW RIPE

Will Correspond With Other Cities Where Similar Action Has Been Taken Before Deciding

The amalgamation of all the civic organizations in the city into a central organization will not be carried out this year according to the result of the meeting of the committee appointed by the directors of the board of trade to investigate the advisability of such a movement. The committee composed of Messrs. William Doerflinger Wells E. Bennett and Harry Hirshheimer met this afternoon in the offices of the secretary of the board of trade and discussed the matter and came to the conclusion that it would be better to defer the amalgamation until next year as the members of the board of trade have paid their dues for the present year and it was thought best to further consider the matter.

While the plan will still be held open and the committee will continue with the work, it will not be taken before the board until the next annual meeting. The committee will communicate with various other places including Burlington, Iowa, and Cedar Rapids where the cities have taken similar steps for the amalgamation of the civic organizations.

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of trade tomorrow evening the committee will report, recommending that the plan be held back until after the annual meeting next year.

HE FALLS DEAD ON FLOWERS STREWN OVER HER GRAVE

THOMAS M'CARTHY EXPIRES ON DECORATION DAY

SON WAS VISITING LA CROSSE

AGED MAN HAD CARRIED BUDS TO WIFE'S GRAVE

KNELT, BUT NEVER ROSE AGAIN

Sad Ending of Former Ticket Agent of the Milwaukee Road in the Older Days

While strewing flowers over the grave of his wife at Calvary cemetery, St. Paul, on Memorial day, Thomas McCarthy, one of the best known railroad men in the northwest and formerly ticket agent of the Milwaukee road in this city, expired. Mr. McCarthy, better known as "Tim," was known to all the early railroad men and when the Chicago & St. Paul depot was located near the elevators on Black river, he was ticket agent and held that office for a number of years. He left La Crosse twenty-five years ago, going to St. Paul, where he has since resided and up to a few years ago when he retired held an office with the Omaha road.

Early Saturday morning "Tim" left his home at St. Paul and proceeded to Calvary cemetery, with his arms laden with flowers to cover his wife's grave. Reaching the grave he knelt and after strewing the flowers over the mound he started to rise but stopped abruptly, wavered for a moment uncertainly, and fell without a murmur over the flowers.

As soon as his identity was found a message was sent to his son Richard McCarthy, who had been spending the past week at the home of John Coady, 617 Division street. The message was received about 10 o'clock, but Mr. McCarthy had left on the 8 o'clock train and did not hear of his father's death until he arrived at St. Paul, although he was notified enroute by Mr. Coady to hasten home at once.

VADERLAND IS SAFE

LONDON, June 1.—The Vaderland which was reported aground on Goodwin Sands, was said early today to be safe at Antwerp. According to the first message a break in her machinery shortly after she had sailed Saturday resulted in her putting about and anchoring in the River Scheldt while repairs were being made. Later, it was then said, the Vaderland cleared for Antwerp and unless the density of the fog prevented she would probably reach Dover this afternoon. A later cablegram to the agents here this afternoon denies that there was any break in the machinery and attributes the delay entirely to the fog.

SPECIAL BREAKS RECORD.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 1.—All records for fast time between Chicago and Pittsburg were smashed when Dr. John Murphy, the famous Chicago specialist, arrived here today on a special train having made the run in just 7 hours 57 minutes, covering 458 miles. The former record is 9 hours. Dr. Murphy was summoned to attend Mrs. Thomas Crittenden, daughter of the late Thomas B. Oliver, millionaire steel magnate, who was operated on last week for appendicitis. After a consultation her condition is reported improved.

PIERCE MUST FACE JURY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1. — H. Clay Pierce, oil magnate, must submit to be taken back to Texas from Missouri under arrest, to answer an indictment for false swearing in the attempt of Texas to oust the Waters-Pierce Oil company from that state. The supreme court of United States so decided today. Pierce is under arrest in St. Louis, and sought release by habeas corpus proceedings, claiming the indictment insufficient.

LAKE FREIGHTERS DELAY.

CLEVELAND, O., June 1.—The independent vessel owners decided today not to open their season on the Great Lakes until June 15th, possibly not until July 1st. At the next meeting set for June 15th, they will decide whether to open then or not. Return cargoes are worrying the vesselmen. They are assured of cargoes for the upbound trips, but will await until they are assured also of return freight.

MODEL MURDERS ARTIST

PARIS, June 1.—Two men and a woman, the latter probably an artists' model, strangled to death Adolph Steinhell, the distinguished artist, and his mother, and bound Steinhell's wife to a bed while they robbed his house. Steinhell had employed the murderess.

END OF CUMMINS-ALLISON BATTLE HERE TOMORROW

BITTER IOWA FIGHT FEUDS BOTH CLAIMING VICTORY

CUMMINS MEN MORE SURE

ASSERT THEY WILL HAVE MAJORITY OF 20,000 OR MORE

TWO CUMMINS VICTORIES

Larrabee Speech and Judge Cowan Correspondence May Have Won for the Governor

DES MOINES, Ia., June 1.—United States Senator Allison arrived here today to end the fight to retain his seat in the senate after 42 years of service. Tomorrow the state primary, the first held under the new law, will decide the political fate of Allison. His opponent is Governor Cummins. The fight between them is largely personal, and while Allison men profess to be confident Cummins men are "on edge" and seem to have at least a premonition of defeat.

The primary vote on [illegible] advisory to the legislature [illegible] the aspirants for the [illegible] bly have agreed to abide by the result, so great is the bitterness engendered that defeat, in the opinion the losing [illegible] will help elect a democrat.

A Bitter Battle.

In its closing days the [illegible] election canvass between Cummins and Allison has become the most remarkable which even this state, with its hard fights and bitter factional battles has known in the decade since Governor Cummins rose above the political horizon and became a disturbing factor in the calculations there.

The last legislature, controlled by Governor Cummins, enacted the law providing that senators should be nominated, like other officers, by the state-wide primary tomorrow.

The Issue Drawn.

At the opening of the fight Cummins was denounced by his opposition and charged with having violated a pledge made two years ago that he would not become a candidate against Senator Allison. The governor declared he had never made such a pledge, and while the charge against him caused some flurry for a short time, it has almost been forgotten more recently, as real issues have been injected into the campaign. Today the question is whether the progressives, as the Cummins element is called, or the stand patters, as the Allison people term themselves, shall continue in full control to dominate Iowa politics.

Allison an "Easterner?"

It is charged by the Cummins people that Senator Allison has always been more of an earstern than a western senator; that during the 35 years he has served in the upper house he has been rather a representative of the conservative than of the progressive view especially as reretaing to corporations. To this the Allison people reply that Cummins is only a fake reformer, a damagogue seeking popularity in order to get office. The Cummins people point to the long list of laws passed by th

AMATEUR GAMES

The La Crosse Clothing company baseball team defeated the Boulevard Greens yesterday afternoon at the Hogan school grounds by a score of 23 to 3. The game was the first of a double header in which the Clothing company boys ran away with both games. The batteries for the first game were as follows: La Crosse Clothing company, Harmacek and F. Novak. Boulevard Greens, F. Albert and F. Tischer.

Harmacek struck out 10 men.

Clothing Co. 2, Cody's Colts 1.

The second game was also in favor of the clothing company boys. Dagle pitched a good game, striking out 12 men in 7 innings and pitching the first no hit amateur game of the season. The Colts fought hard for the game but were outclassed in both fielding and batting by the clothiers. Batteries—Cody's Colts, Cody brothers; La Crosse Clothing Co., Dagle and Frank Novak.

ATHLETES TOO MUCH FOR GALES

TAKE BOTH SATURDAY AND SUNDAY GAMES

UMPIRING IS UNSATISFACTORY

Trempealeau County Tossers Claim Mr. Reilley Was Not as Fair as He Might Have Been

The Athletes defeated the Galesville bunch Sunday afternoon by a score of 10 to 2. The game was a walkaway for the Athletes, but was flavored with batting streaks and sharp decisions. Kohn, the southpaw Athlete pitcher, threw a good game and had excellent support. Davis and Schaeffer composing the Galesville negro battery also played a good game at times when they were not raking each other over the coals. Davis got excited on one or two occasions when the decisions of Umpire Reilley did not suit and threatened to lick the team, umpire, grand stand and all with the aid of his fellow darky, but managed to cool down enough to finish the game.

Some of Reilley's Decisions "Bum."

The Trempealeau county ball tossers complained of being poorly treated by the umpire.

Klein was the first of the visitors to bat and succeeded in getting out on first. Chase hit the ball on the nose for a hit into the left field and Klein ran the bases in his place. Brunson reached first bag on an error and Schaeffer flew out to Gilles. Davis batted a hot one into the far center field and Chase scored. Brunigan fanned.

The Athletes went out in quick order in the first, no one reaching first. In the second the visitors secured one hit and no runs. Swan opened the second for the Athletes by slugging out a tow base hit and scoring. Evenson went out from second to first and J. Weis did not succeed in making connections with the ball. M. Johnson went out from Klein to Brunson. The visitors failed to send a man to first in the third and the Athletes secured only one hit but no runs. In the fourth Davis, the Galesville pitcher, failed to reach first base. Olson, the lanky short-stop, landed on the ball for a hit into center field and Johnson flew out to Gilles in left field. This was the second sensational catch made by the Athlete left fielder in the game. Gardner ended the inning by striking out.

F. Johnson started the ball rolling for the Athletes by reaching first on a wild pitch. Swan batted out a single into the left field and Evenson followed with a two base hit on which the two runners scored. J. Weis struck out and M. Johnson went out from second to first. Gilles batted a little one to Davis who shipped it to first, putting the runner out.

In the fifth Klein stepped up to the plate like a lamb to the slaughter and went back to the bench with a strike out to his credit. Chase batted a single out into right field and Brunson followed with a single into center field. Schaeffer and Davis were both caught out.

Kohn landed oa hit into the left field but was forced out on second when Kircheis reached first. B. Weis took first on a wild pitch and F. Johnson flew out to Klein. Swan knocked out a two bagger on which Kircheis and Weis scored. Evenson went out from pitcher to first.

The sixth inning was the most interesting for the visitors because there was nothing doing. Even the catcher forgot to kick. Weis opened it for the Athletes by striking out, and M. Johnson worked for a base on balls. Gilles landed a hit into center field and Kohn reached first on an error by Olson. Kircheis bunted and beat the ball to first. B. Weis came to the rescue with a single and Gilles, Kohn and Kircheis scored. J. Johnson took first on an error and stole second when Davis was sleeping. Swan flew out to center field. Neither side scored in the seventh, but the visitors secured two hits. The visitors braced up in the eighth and Davis crossed the bag with a score. They were not able, however, to overcome the lead which the Athletes had taken and when the latter ran in three scores in the eighth there was no show for the Galesville crowd. Hegge was put in the box for the visitors in the seventh and Davis went in at third base, but the combination did not work and the game ended with a score of 10 to 2. The score:

WAUSAU, Wis., June 1.—(Special.)—With Lang in the box for the locals and Jones and Eberly for La Crosse, the star twirlers for both teams, what was expected to be a pitchers' battle in royal manner, turned out to be more of a farce as both the visitors' pitchers were in poor condition and touched up for a total of 9 hits. Lang for the locals was effective throughout the entire game allowing but three hits, resulting in one score in the third inning. Jones opened the game for La Crosse and after allowing four runs in the sixth, coupled with a bunch of misplays, was taken out and Eberly sent in. In the eighth inning the locals found Eberly at ease and brought in three runs and cinched the game. Killian for the visitors, made his first error of the season. The Wausau team left last evening for Fond du Lac, where they will open for a series and the La Crosse team left for their home, where they will open a series with Madison Tuesday.. The score:

Memorial Day

WAUSAU, Wis., June 1.—(Special.)—Rain! The weather man will be responsible if at the end of the season several of the league cities are minus in the treasury. The weather for Memorial day was probably the heaviest blow to the cities than at any previous day since the opening of the season. With the stores closed in the afternoon every body was expecting to take in the game and the rain hit the treasury eytremely hard. Rain in the morning and wet grounds and rain in the afternoon caused the La Crosse and locals to spend the day lounging around the hotels.

RHEUMATISM CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

Rubbing with liniments, blistering the affected parts, the application of plasters, and other means of external treatment, are usually helpful in relieving the pains and aches of Rheumatism, but such remedies do not reach the CAUSE of the disease, and are therefore in no sense curative. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by indigestion, poor bowel action, weak kidneys, and a general sluggish condition of th system. The circulation deposits this irritating poison in the different muscles, nerves, tissues and joints of the body, and soon the painful symptoms of Rheumatism are produced. The pains at first may be wandering and slight; but as the blood becomes more fully saturated with the uric acid poison, the disease grows worse and after awhile gets to be chronic. The slight, wandering pains now become sharp and cutting at the least exposure to dampness or night air, or any constitutional irregularity, the bones ache, the muscles are not as free in action as before, and where the acid poison is allowed to remain in the blood the joints often become so clogged with corrosive substances that they are left permanently stiff and useless. Rheumatism can never be rubbed away, nor can it be conquered and driven from the system until the acid-laden blood has been cleansed and purified. No other medicine does this so effectually as S. S. S. It dissolves and removes the impurities and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which soothes the irritated nerves, inflamed muscles and flesh, and the sufferer obtains relief that is permanent because the real cause of the disease has been removed. Special book on Rheumatism and any medical advice desired free.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

DOCTOR'S ALL AGREE THIS TIME.

The most eminent writers on Materia Medica, whose works are consulted as authorities and guides in prescribing by physicians of all the different schools of practice, extol, in the most positive terms, the curative virtues of each and every ingredient entering into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In fact it is the only medicine, put up for sale through druggists for the cure of all diseases of the mucous surfaces, as nasal catarrh, throat, laryngeal, and bronchial affections attended by lingering, or hang-on-coughs that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any amount of lay or non-professional testimonials.

Do not expect too much from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will not work miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. Nor is the "Discovery" so good for a sudden attack of acute cough, but for the lingering, obstinate, hang-on-coughs, accompanying catarrhal, throat, laryngeal and bronchial affections, it is a most efficacious remedy. In cases accompained with wasting of flesh, night-sweats, weak stomach and poor digestion with faulty assimilation, and which, if neglected or badly treated are apt to lead to consumption, the "Discovery" has proven wonderfully successful in effecting cures.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by enclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value.

Some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for healing ulcerations, regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to endeavor to palm off upon you some nostrum of unknown composition in place of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Most dealers recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines because they know what they are made of and that the ingredients employed are among the most valuable that a medicine for like purposes can be made of. The same is true of leading physicians who do not hesitate to recommend these medicines, since they know exactly what they contain and that their ingredients are the very best known to medical science for the cure of the several diseases for which they are recommended.

With tricky dealers it is different.

Something else that pays them a little greater profit will be urged upon you as "just as good," or even better. You can hardly afford to accept a substitute of unknown composition and without any particular record of cures in place of Dr. Pierce's medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and have a record of forty years of cures behind them. You know what you want and it is the dealer's business to supply that w... Insist upon it.

MONEY BILL HISTORY

We elsewhere publish what is perhaps the most interesting, and probably the most accurate, description of the coup by which Senator Aldrich, Vice President Fairbanks, Senator Elkins and others of that ilk outgeneraled Senator La Follette and put to rout his already famous filibuster against the emergency currency bill. It is by Walter Wellman, of the Record-Herald staff, and it contains the only acceptable explanation of the sudden and unexpected termination of the senate fight that appeared in Sunday newspapers:

In a word, as told by Mr. Wellman, the defeat of the filibuster was due to a trick. It was sharp practice. It may not have been exactly repehensible, but it is procedure of the sort that seems to soil those who resort to it. However, the filibuster itself—the time honored weapon of the minority to check legislation of a (to it) objectionable character—is in a way a trick, so one's sympathies in the matter, as between Senator La Follette and Senator Aldrich et al., must seek their justification in the merits of the whole controversy of which the filibuster and the Aldrich coup were but incidents.

The history of the Aldrich-Vreeland bill is an interesting study in politics as it affects our national legislation. When first presented the Aldrich bill had not a chance of passing. Its most objectionable feature—aside from the sweeping fact that it establishes an asset currency—was its provision that railroad stocks and bonds might become security as a basis for currency issues. This clause was regarded as dangerous, because of the fact that railroad stocks are so generally inflated, investments of actual capital not being within shouting distance of paper capitalization. An early canvass of congress found house republicans opposed to this quite generally, and strong objection to it in the senate. Senator La Follette opened the fight on the measure. His first move was to offer an amendment to the bill in the form of a rider providing for physical valuation by the government of railroad properties, so the proportion of actual value to capital stock might be known and excessively watered stocks rejected as an unsatisfactory basis of currency issue. That was but one feature of his fight, however. He announced he would address the senate in opposition to the whole bill, his greatest concern being to have the clause making railroad stocks and bonds eligible as a currency basis stricken out entirely.

On the morning upon which La Follette was to speak Aldrich arose and withdrew this clause, hoping to upset La Follette's attack. La Follette made his address, and in his opening remarks predicted that the railroad securities feature would reappear before the session was over, a prophetic statement indeed.

The senate narrowly passed the bill, but the house jumped on it with both feet. It had not a chance to pass in that form then.

Hereupon republican bosses began to drive the congress. Enter politics, and politicians preached that the bill must be passed to protect the party from defeat in the coming elections. Back came the bill in one form and another, while all the time the whip cracked. More and more worried became the republican congressmen; less and less thought they of the effect of the bill on the finances of the country. "Will I be re-elected if it is defeated?" was the one burning question. At last, as La Follette predicted, the bill reappeared in the hurry of the last hours with the railroad securities feature again covertly inserted, and without the La Follette valuation amendment. The very bill that had not a ghost of a show of passing congress earlier in the session—the same barring some changes affecting bankers' profits and minor details—and it went through with a hop, skip and a jump. If the view of the legislators who passed it—barring Aldrich and the money barons—is correct, the name "emergency currency bill" should be changed to the "emergency political bill." But to J. P. Morgan, H. H. Rodgers, Senator Aldrich and "statesmen" of that school, the bill has an entirely different significance. That is why they—a dozen men in all—blocked everything in the way of fair money legislation, routed every effort to give the people a measure that was not one-tenth relief to the public and nine-tenths rake-off to the big corporations, and held up the political bogy man until the little fellows in the party went daft for fear of losing their jobs and "put over" a measure which, we believe, will not long escape the condemnation of the masses who make congressmen and senators. The bill had the approval of neither a majority of congress nor a majority of the public, yet these autocrats compelled its passage by a large majority. Today the La Follette filibuster is merely a sensational congressional episode, but future historians will tell of it as a significant incident in the great fight for the restoration of popular government.

"LET US ALONE!"

(New York World.)

Women of the Confederate Choir of America have fitted new words to "Dixie," beginning:

Oh, Dixie land is the land of glory,
The land of cherished song and story.

In thinking that the old words—"cinnamon seed and sandy bottom" and the rest—are not good enough the ladies are mistaken. What set "Dixie" going, what made Lincoln call it the best song of the war, what makes the New York theatre and restaurant audiences thrill with it, though they may never have been further South than Atlantic City, is its spirit. The words have "go." By the memory of the lips that have sung them they should be protected from change. Only so can the song retain its history and its sentiment.

Did words fit old songs. "America" is poor stuff, but no attempt to fit new words to the tune has succeeded. Custom will save it. "God Save the King" is no better. There is not much poetry in—

Frustrate their knavish tricks!
Confound their politics!—

but that is the way it goes, and will go. The attempt to suppress some of the fighting words of "The Star Spangled Banner" deserves to fail. There are impolite expressions in "Lillibullero" and "A Health to King Charles," but they can ill be spared. Could any new words fit the "Marsellaise" so well as do those that de l'Isle dashed off in one night's feverish excitement? What German would tamper with "Koerner's Hymn" or the "Watch on the Rhine?" If the old songs could speak for themselves they would all say "Let us alone."

AS HISTORY MIGHT BE TAUGHT.

(Boston Transcript.)

Another way of teaching history which the schools might adopt has apparently not yet appealed to them. A good newspaper, if the teacher knows how to interpret its daily record, may stimulate an interest in history even more than the formal history itself. If the pupil can be taught the continuity and relation of events, an awakened interest in daily happenings will arouse a desire to trace them back through preceding stages. It is the break in continuity between the past and the immediate present that deadens enthusiasm. By studying history backward from the immediate present this chasm would be bridged and the passion for tracing effect to cause stimulated.

SPOTLIGHTS

Vandyke and Eaton Co.

At last there is a real theatrical company at cheap prices, actors of talent, specialties of merit and Vandyke & Eaton brought the company. La Crosse theatre never held a larger audience than the one that assembled yesterday afternoon to see this popular company.

It was an excellent performance of "Slaves of the Mill." Miss Ollie Eaton and Mr. Hugo B. Koch in the leading roles were exceptionally clever, and their support was also good.

The company is particularly good in specialties, given between acts, and gives some of the best "vaudeville" acts. Miss Ethel May' the mystery girl," was seated on a small platform over the footlights, was blindfolded and yet she read with startling rapidity the questions, giving the correct names of the writers, and hurried, though in the main, correct answers to the questions which were written, signed and kept by persons in the audience.

But one verdict is heard: "The best company playing at cheap prices ever seen in La Crosse."

'The Embezzler" will be the bill presented tonight, and ladies will be admitted free with tickets purchased before 6 p. m. A special matinee is announced for Wednesday afternoon when Miss Eaton will appear in her $1,500 gown.

The Ham Tree.

The musical features in Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Ham Tree," the musical entertainment in which they are starring McIntyre and Heath, the famous minstrels, were written by William Jerome and Jean Schwartz, who have contributed so many song hits to the stage during the past five years. "The Ham Tree" is booked for presentation in this city at the La Crosse theatre Thursday, June 4th.

At the Majestic.

The week's program at the Majestic theatre, formerly the Grand, is one of the best that has been put on since the theatre has been in operation. It includes the following moving pictures: "Kidnapping a Bride," "A Runaway Horse," "Life in a Burmah Teak Forest" and "Bird Nesting." Among the popular illustrated songs are "Fenella," "In After Years When I Am Old" and "Stingy."

FASHION HINTS

By MAY MANTON

5988 Fancy Neckwear, One Size.

Fancy neckwear makes such an important feature of the season's dress that its making really becomes a question of moment. Here are designs which provide for a generous variety and which are very simple while at the same time they include the latest styles. In the illustration the jabot is made of fine white batiste edged with a simple lace, while the turn-over portion of the collar is of striped material and the stock is made of net banded with insertion and edged with lace. Materials, however, are many and a great deal of variety can be evolved from the designs. For the jabot washable tulle and filet net are great favorites with trimming of lace, fine batistes are much used, in many instances the material of the blouse is liked; or again lace four inches wide can be utilized for both the jabot and the bow. The turn-over collar is one of the best liked models and is available for every fashionable material. Stripes with the embroidered scallops and dots are exceedingly smart, but almost any finish of hand work is correct. For the stock collar net and lace chiffon and the material of the gown, almost anything that may be liked, can be utilized with trimming to suit individual fancy.

The jabot is made in one straight piece, which is gathered and arranged over a foundation. There are two bows which are differently shaped and each is gathered at the center and held by a cross-over portion. The roll-over collar is made with a band foundation which can be buttoned into place and the stock collar is cut with the points behind the ears that are so much in vogue.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is, for the jabot, ¼ yard of material 36 inches wide, ⅛ yard 72 with 3¾ yards of edging, or 2 yards of lace 4 inches wide; for either bow ⅛ yard any width, with 1¾ yards of insertion and 1 yard of edging to trim as illustrated; for the turn-over collar ½ yard any width.

The pattern 5988 is cut in one size only and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

OKLAHOMA TRIES REFORM.

The Oklahoma legislature has passed a law forbidding the employment of any person in the executive, judicial or legislative department of the state government if said person, he or she, be a relative in the third degree of an officer in that department. Such a law, if introduced in this community, would prove a sad blow at the family relation. Think of the family trees which would have to be pruned to the trunk to escape the annoyance of such new-fangled anti-nepotism requirements!

Clay and the Salary Grab.

" 'Quinn,' said an old member one day, 'I heard you worrying about the mileage. Did you ever hear the story of Clay and the salary grab?'

" 'No,' he replied.

" 'When Clay was speaker,' he continued, 'along about 1816, the crowd raised their salaries to $1500 a year. There was a great howl all over the county and when Clay reached home in Kentucky, he found old one-armed Joe Pope, a federalist, out after his scalp to beat the band, and all the Clay adherents ominously silent. Worried and anxious Clay sought out his old barber, who had always been enthusiastic in his advocacy and who happened to be an Irishman. "I trust I may count on your hearty support as usual?" Clay asked. "Faith, Mr. Clay!" said the Irish barber, "I think I shall vote at this time for the man who can get but one hand into the treasury." ' "—Henry Beach Needham, in Success Magazine.

Preserving Proprieties

A traveler in the mountains of Tennessee had been stowed away in the best bed the cottage afforded. Late in the night he was awakened by the voice of the paterfamilias addressed to the daughter, who was entertaining company by the fireside.

"Mandy," growled the old man, "is that young man there yit?"

"Yep, pap."

"Is he got his arm around yer waist?"

Sierra's Poet on Decollete Dresses

Jaoquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, is something of a recluse and rarely comes into San Francisco, but when he does he is made a good deal of a lion. On his last visit he was one of the guests at a regular formal dinner at a friend's house where he stayed over night. His hostess had known the poet since childhood, so she felt privileged next morning to discourse to him of the beauties of the Parisian gown she had worn the night before—beauties which seemed to have escaped his observation.

Mr. Miller listened to all that she had to say and remained silent.

"But didn't you really like the dress?" pleaded the lady.

"Well," replied the poet, "I did like part of it well enough."

The lady brightened.

"Indeed?" she said. "What part?"

"The part you had on," answered the poet, and that ended the discussion.—San Francisco Call.

Feathered Idleness

Little Margie on her first visit to a farm was told to wander about the barn and search for eggs. Some time later the child returned almost in tears.

"Couldn't you find any eggs, dearie?" asked her mother.

"No," replied Margie wearily. "I think it's mean, too, 'cause lots of hens were standing around doing nothing."—Lippincott's.

THE PAUPER OF PARK LANE

By William Le Queux

"Ah yes," was the old man's response, as though recalling the fact. "I've heard so. Your friend Barclay came to see me, and told me some long story about her. I wrote to Cunnington, but I haven't seen any reply from him. It may have gone to the office."

"My sister has left Oxford Street—and hidden herself, in disgrace. We can't find her."

"Then if you can't find her, Rolfe, I don't see how I can assist you," remarked the elder man. "Girls entertain strange fancies, you know—especially the sentimental-minded. Been reading novels, perhaps—eh? Was she given to that?"

"The girls at Cunnington's have little time for reading," he said, piqued at Statham's careless manner. Hitherto he had believed that the old man was genuinely interested in her(but he now saw that her future was to him nothing. He was too much occupied in piling up wealth to trouble his head over a girl's distress, even though that girl might be the sister of the man who by his acute business foresight often won for him thousands in a single day.

Charlie rose, full of suppressed anger. He did not notice the look of anxiety and shame upon the old man's face, for his head was bowed beneath the lamplight as he pretended to fumble with his papers.

"Perhaps your sister was tired of the place—too much hard work. Thought to better herself."

"My sister was, like myself, much indebted to you, Mr. Statham," was Rolfe's reply. "If she has been discharged in disgrace, it is, I feel confident, through no fault of her own. Therefore, I beg of you, to ask Mr. Cunnington to make full inquiry."

"What is the use? It is Cunnington himself who engages the hands and discharges them," replied Statham evasively. "I can't interfere."

"But," Rolfe argued "for the sake of my sister's good name you will surely do me this one small favour?'

"I have already seen Barclay, who says he's engaged to her. Call on him, and he'll explain what I have already said and the inquiry I have already made," replied the old man in growing impatience.

"But weeks have gone by, and you've received no reply from Cunnington. He does not usually treat you with such discourtesy.'

"I can only think that he acted as his own judgment directed him," the millionaire replied. "You know how strict the rules are that govern shop-assistants, and I suppose he could not favour your sister any more than the others."

"Marion wanted no favours," he declared. "She never asked one of anybody at Oxford Street. She only desires justice and truth—and I mean to have them for her."

"Then go and see Cunnington for yourself," snapped the old man. "I've done all I can do. If your sister chooses to go away and hide herself, how can I help it?"

"But she was sent away!" cried Rolfe in anger. "Sent away in disgrace, and I intend to discover what charge there is against her—and the truth concerning it!"

"Dear me, Rolfe!" snapped the old man impatiently. "Do go home, for heaven's sake. You're tired and hungry—consequently out of temper."

"Yes," he cried, "I am out of temper because you refuse to render my sister justice! But she shall have it—she shall!"

And he stalked out of the room and closed the door noisily behind him.

Then, after the door had closed, old Sam raised his head, and his eyes followed the young man. In them was a look such as was seldom seen there—a look of double cunning which spoke mutely of false and double-dealing.

CHAPTER XLIV

Tells of a Determination.

Entering his chambers in Jermyn Street half an hour later, Rolfe was met by the faithful Green, to whom he gave orders to "ring up" Mr. Barclay at Dover Street.

"Then he went along to his room to wash and dress.

A few moments later Green came in, saying :

"Mr. Barclay left town five days ago, sir. He's up at Kilmaronock."

His master made no reply for some moments. Then at last he said:

"Pack my suit-case, and 'phone to Euston to reserve me a seat to Perth on the ten-five tomorrow morning."

"Yes, sir."

"And to everybody except my sister, if she calls, you don't know where I've gone—you understand?"

"Perfectly, sir."

And the man set about packing up his master's traps.

"You may as well put in a dinner-coat. Max may have friends," Rolfe said.

His master dressed quickly and went alone to the club for a late dinner. Most of his friends were away shooting, therefore he idled alone for an hour over the paper and then returned to his chambers.

Next morning he scribbled a hasty note to Mr. Statham, making an excuse for his sudden absence, and directly after ten was seated in the Scotch express traveling out of London.

At eight that evening he stepped out upon the big, dark station at Perth, sent a telegram to the Crown Inn at Kilmaronock village for a "machine," as a fly is called, and then took the slow branch line that runs by Crieff and skirts Loch Earn to the head of Glen Ogle, where lay the old castle and fine shooting of which Max Barclay was possessor.

A drive of three miles on the road beside Loch Voil brought him to the lodge-gates, and then another mile up through the park he came to the great portico of the castle.

It was nearly midnight. Lights were still in the billiard-room of the fine old castellated mansion, which Max's father had modernized and rendered so comfortable, and when Charlie rang, Burton, the butler, could not suppress an exclamation of surprise.

In a few moments, however, Charlie burst into the room where Max and five other men were playing "snooker" before retiring.

The host's surprise was great, but the visitor received a hearty welcome, and an hour later, when the guests had gone to their rooms, the two friends stood alone together in the long old-fashioned drawing-room which, without a woman's artistic hand to keep things in order, was rapidly going to decay.

A big wood fire blazed cheerfully in the wide old-fashioned grate, for October evenings in the Highlands are damp and chill, and as the two men stood before it they looked at one another, both hesitating to speak.

Across Charlie's mind flashed those suspicions which had oppressed him in Belgrade. Was the man before him his enemy or his friend?

"Well," he blurted forth, "I've come straight up to see you, Max. I only arrived home last night. I want to see you concerning Marion."

His companion's lips hardened.

"Marion!" he exclaimed. "I have done all I can. I've left no effort untried. I have sought the aid of the best confidential inquiry agency in London, and all to no avail. She's disappeared—as completely as Maud has done!"

"Yes, I know," replied her brother, thrusting his hands deep into the trousers-pockets of his blue serge travelling-suit. "I've seen Statham."

"And so have I. He wrote to Cunnington's, but the latter has not replied. I saw Cunnington myself."

'And what did he say?"

"The fellow refused to say anything," he replied in a hard tone.

Silence again fell between the pair.

Senator La Follette is not alone in his struggle to hold the bridge. His chief ally is Senator Stone, of Missouri, who reached Washington today because he had been informed that trouble was brewing and on account of his desire to have a hand in it, he was in his seat at midnight ready to relieve La Follette at any time.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma, the blind statesman, is the third member of the band of blockholders. It ... understood that after La Follette tires Stone is to take up the fight, and after Stone steps aside the blind man will take his place.

Today a telegram was received by Senator La Follette from Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas reading:

"Hold the fort, I am coming." This is taken to mean that the picturesque statesman from Arkansas is on his way to Washington, eager to win new honors as a warrior against the hosts of plutocracy.

Senator Aldrich says there is nothing for the republicans to do but sit tight and wait for the filibusters to tire themselves out.

* * * *

About midnight last night (Friday) Senator La Follette did some telephoning and telegraphing. He was determined to make a fight against the currency bill if he could find support. Learning that Senator Stone of Missouri had been telegraphed for and that he would probably be willing to participate in a filibuster, "Little Bob" put on his war paint and started for the capitol. It was not long before he found it necessary to come to the front. Senator Culberson, leader of the democratic minority, first indulged in the customary review of the session for political purposes, showing that the republicans had spent the public money very lavishly, and created new offices most generously, and soon afterward the Wisconsin senator was recognized and the long and peculiar struggle had begun. Mr. La Follette had his desk piled high with papers and documents. It was apparent that he was prepared for a long siege. If anyone had misgivings as to his intentions to show his strength as a long-distance talker he was quickly undeceived, for the Wisconsin senator early took occasion to remark that he was able to talk for six weeks, if necessary, and that his voice and strength would last that long. "I have tried them and know whereof I speak," he added, amid laughter in the galleries and rather grim smiles on the floor. As Mr. La Follette proceeded, rolling out words upon words with obvious ease and showing every sign of possessing not only an intention but an ability to go on like the brook, forever, the scene on the republican side was a strange one.

* * * *

Senator Aldrich, the majority leader, yesterday all smiles over the seeming triumph of his tactics, now wore a very long face. He ge... little knots of two or three republicans about him to discuss ways and

MRS. DENTON DIES ON NORTH SIDE

STREET NAMED FOR AGED LADY'S HUSBAND

LIVED HERE OVER 20 YEARS

Death Comes at the Age of 74 Years; Funeral Will Be Held from Home of Her Granddaughter

Mrs. Jennie Denton, an old resident of the north side, passed away Sunday morning at 2 o'clock, at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. A. M. Pittinger, 807 Caledonia street. Death was due to old age, Mrs. Denton being 74 years of age.

Mrs. Denton has been a resident of the city for over twenty years. Her husband, David Denton, died five years ago and since that time she has made her home with her granddaughter. She leaves only a daughter, Mrs. Race, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Pittinger.

Denton street on the south side was named after her husband and the old Denton Place on the outskirts of the north side was built by him many years ago.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from the Pittinger residence, Rev. Randall officiating. The interment will be made in the Oak Grove cemetery with William Dwyer in charge.

last legislature as demonstration that Cummins is the real thing and no faker.

In the last month of the campaign the question has been raised, as to who was first on the field of reform. Governor Cummins had represented that he was demanding rate legislation long before Senator Allison and Dolliver thought about it. He was denounced as a common—well, they haven't said liar thus far in the campaign, because the governor once knocked a man down who called him that. But there was serious disagreement with his recollection of the facts.

The Larrabee Sensation

The railroad issue in Iowa and in the nation was founded in the early seventies by William Larrabee, an Iowa man who later was elected governor of Iowa on the issue, and who corced a legislature many years ago to pass a code of railroad regulation laws which were made the models for many other western states. Governor Larrabee is a relative of Senator Dolliver, but being called on for testimony he came forward with a public speech in which he declared that Allison and Dolliver were laggards in reform, and advised every friend of the plain people to vote for Cummins.

This speech was electrical in its effect. It stirred up the state in tremendous fashion, for Larrabee has been regarded as so close a friend to Dolliver that he would certainly stand by Alison for the sake of Dolliver. The tide turned in Cummins' favor.

Another Cummins' Helper

The next thing that happened was the publication in the Iowa papers of a letter which Judge S. H. Cowan of Fort Worth, Tex., had written to Henry Wallace, a leading newspaper man and editor in Des Moines. Judge Cowan is attorney for various organizations of livestock and shipping interests in their cases against the railroad, and also a politician of a good deal of note in the west. He wrote to Mr. Wallace that Governor Cummins was a very much needed man in the senate, because he was not only a great lawyer, but was on the publis's side in this fight between the people and the railroads. He urged Mr. Wallace to support Cummins for senator, and said that Senator Allison had always been a representative of eastern rather than of western interests, anyhow.

Mr. Wallace happened to be a strong Cummins man, and he published the letter. It added to the uprising which the Larrabee speech had started. The Allison people discovered that the tide was flowing against them. The reserves were called in. The members of congress were summoned home, Senator Dollixer was called in, and every effort was made to organize for a grand finale of the campaign on the stump, with the Allison fireworks producing all the colors of the rainbow.

Congressmen Afraid

But this plan became embarrassed by the fact that the representatives in congress have also to be renominated at the same primary at which the Cummins-Allison difference will be settled. The representative discovered that it would be bad for their health to go out campaigning for Allison, because if they did so a lot of people would punish them by voting against their renominations. Congressmen Hull and Hepburn and Smith, all strong Allison men, were kept out of the senatorial fight by this consideration. Mr. Cousins and Mr. Birdsell decided not to be candidates for renomination; they were both opposed to Cummins, and it looked apparent that their districts would turn them down if they persisted in such a course.

A Democrat, Maybe

As a result the Washington end of Iowa has been pretty well kept out of the fight. The opposing sides both claim the state by small majorities in the primary; the Cummins people by about 20,000, the Allison bureau by about half as much. Bitterness is intense; families are divided, business partnerships broken, and chaos prevalent. The democrats claim that whoever is nominated by the republicans will be defeated in the legislature and that a democrat will be the senator.

HEINZ
Baked Beans

Try them just once—eber afterward you'll instinctively say "Heinz" when you want genuine baked beans.

First parboiled—as all good cooks do—to soften the skin and make them tender.

Then placed in dry-heated ovens and baked to a tempting golden brown—baked till every bean is so mellow and mealy, so finely flavored with that real New England zest and savor, that a single taste proves that the only way to cook beans is to bake them.

Finally blended with rich, finely-flavored tomato sauce, made in the HEINZ way from tomatoes which are grown specially for HEINZ. Surely, they even surpass your ideal of what beans ought to be.

Nor do any of these qualities diminish to the slightest degree, for the HEINZ Improved Tin (sterilized and solderless) insures permanent flavor and purity.

The great demand for HEINZ Beans by particular palates proves their superiority.

BREAD MAKING

No. 2—Small Family Size, $1 35

Beginning today and continuing all this week we shall have a demonstration of the "Universal" Bread Maker in our store. We have secured the assistance of an expert cook, who will show you all the advantages of this wonderful machine.

Every day during the demonstration she will mix, knead and bake up a hundred little sample loaves of bread, which will be given to the lady callers, as evidence of the fine work that the "Universal" does.

Saves Time

Three minutes turning kneads the dough more thouroughly than can possibly be done by hand in a much longer time.

Saves Muss

The saving of muss and bother and worry in the kitchen is a great boon indeed. Nothing to wash except the pail itself.

Easily Cleaned

The dough lifts right out as shown in the illustration, leaving the machine cleaner than you can imagine. 4 loaf size, $2.00; 8 loaf size, $2.50.

CONCERT AT NEW ALBIN.

The concert which was given Friday evening by the Choral club at New Albin, under the direction of Prof. James R. Kerr was a great success, and in spite of the unpleasant weather a large attendance was present. Prof. Harry Packmann who had been engaged as accompanist for the club, failed to reach New Albin on account of the terrific storm, but his place was very acceptably filled by Mr. Charles Travers of New Albin. The Cecilia quartette which rendered several charming selections were all present but Miss Mumford, who could not get to the station in time owing to the storm. However the quartettes were all made into trios and they were warmly received. The club has done splendid work and is looking forward to a successful organization next year.

A DEMONSTRATION OF BREAD MAKERS

As you will notice from our advertisements, we are having a demonstration of the "Universal" Bread Maker in our store.

We shall mix, knead and bake right in the store, a hundred or more little souvenir loaves of bread every day.

These little sample loaves, which will be given to the lady callers, will prove to you that three short minutes' turning of the machine kneads the dough more thoroughly than half an hour's hand kneading.

You will be surprised and pleased at the fine texture of the bread; and the fact that the "Universal" Bread Mixer is easily turned, and that the dough does not stick at all, will be the most convincing to you.

We want you to come and see one of the machines in operation, and get a little book of recipes and a little loaf of bread, whether you buy a Bread Maker or not.

The smallest size costs only $1.35.

means of getting rid of the obstreperous gentleman from Madison. Then he walked over on the democratic side and appealed to Senators Culberson, Teller and others, to see if they could not do something to sttm the torrent of eloquence issuing from the mouth of the man from Wisconsin. The democrats declared they were disgusted withr the performance and were not responsible for it. They were not helping La Follette. If any individual senator on their side expressed a wish to debate the bill, they would, of course, see that ne had his rights. But they were not engaged in a filibuster. They made it plain that they had no wish to assume any responsibility for defeat of the currency bill, if it was to be defeated. A rumor was in circulation during the afternoon that Senator Culberson had a telegram from Mr. Bryan asking the democratic senators to join hands with La Follette in an effort to defeat the bill, filibustering if necessary. Senator Culberson declared he had received no such telegram and inquiry failed to develop that any other senator had received such a message. Though publicly protesting that they were disgusted with the one-man filibuster, as a matter of fact most of the democrats were secretly delighted with it. They greatly enjoyed seeing the republican brethren engaged in the task of tearing one another to pieces.

* * * *

One will have to stay around the senate chamber many years to see the leaders and members of the majority party as angry as they were today at the little man from Wisconsin. They were just ready to adjourn. By the hardest sort of work and closest sort of shaves, they had been able to reach an agreement on the most important measure of the session, the currency bill. They had confidently counted upon being able to get away tonight or tomorrow. Many of them had engaged sleeping and parlor car accommodations, had packed their trunks, had arranged their affairs and with their families were prepared to flit to climes more congenial than the sultry precincts of the national capital, content with having done a good piece of work for the country and the party in framing up an emergency currency bill.

Just at this juncture up bobs the little man from Wisconsin. He sets his square jaw hard like a vise. His black hair bristles straight up in most aggressive fashion. He takes the floor. He announces his determination to hold it several weeks, or till his strength is exhausted and he has at last done all that nature would permit him to do. Hot as was the temperature in the senate chamber, that in the cloakrooms where senators gathered to discuss the unusual situation was much more sultry. The language used there was admittedly unparliamentary. If cuss-words could have feazed the fighting man from Wisconsin he would have slunk out of sight; but none of these reached his ears. And on and on he went.

* * * *

What angered the republicans more than anything else was that this filibuster, this temporary upset of their apple cart, came from one of their own side. It was the doings of a republican bad boy and they could not blame it upon a democrat. Once Mr. La Follette used the words "on that side," pointing to the republicans, whereupon Mr. Keane of New Jersey asked the Wisconsin senator if he meant that he no longer belonged among the republicans. Mr. La Follette declined to admit that he had left the republican party. He immediately entered upon an eloquent defense of his republicanism and of the right of any good republican to express his opinion on any subject of vital interest to the American people.

* * * *

So deep was the resentment of the republicans that they early determined if an opportunity should offer to get rid of the little torment who was goading them from his place on the democratic side of the chamber, though belonging officially to their side of the ranks. Presently Mr. La Follette, warmed by the heat of his own words and the scowls of the senators round about him, explained in an angry voice that he would have the pleasure of going to the bottom of this subject even if he had to cross-question the senator from Rhode Island. "The senator from Rhode Island has not answered my questions frankly and sincerely," he exclaimed, pointing his finger melodramatically at Mr. Aldrich, "and now we meet in a forum where some of us at least are free men."

This was the chance the republicans had been looking for. Immediately Senator Foraker demanded that the senator from Wisconsin be subjected to rule 19, which forbids any senator to make personal remarks derogatory to another, and requires that when such senator is called to order he shall take his seat and not proceed unless permitted to do so by a vote of the senate. Senator Foraker called Mr. La Follette to order, and the latter took his seat amid great excitement on the floor and in the galleries. The vote was taken and if the republicans had wished to do so they had it in their power to squelch the little man from Wisconsin then and there, but the right of free speech, the right to proceed without limitation is one of the dearest traditions of the senate. Angry as the republicans were, they could not at this time bring themselves to strike down that tradition in order to silence the man who was pestering them so successfully. So they all voted to permit him to go on, and on he went, full steam. But it was noticed he took care thereafter to avoid all offensive personal allusions, though he came very near when he spoke of his admiration for the senator from Ohio, his admiration for the courage of that senator for taking the untenable positions he did take and defending them with so much ability. By this time it had been whispered in the ear of Mr. La Follette that the first time he was called to order for violating rule 19 could be considered a warning. If he were to offend a second time, tradition or no tradition, they would vote to send him to his seat.

* * * *

After this incident the republicans let La Follette alone. They made no attempt to answer his criticism of the bill, believing that the best way to tire him out was to avoid interruptions and force him to hold the floor. But La Follette soon demonstrated that he is not a novice in the somewhat desperate game he is playing. He knew how to gain occasional breathing spells, even if he was not favored by interrogatories from his sullen and glowering opponents. Every half hour or so, or whenever he felt that he needed a little rest, he called the attention of the vice president to the apparent lack of a quorum, with the result that a call of the senate was had. Each roll call required eight or ten minutes, and this precious time was utilized by the long-distance orator in much-needed repose for his voice and his body, for Mr. La Follette is not very well, and is, in fact, in poor physical condition for such a struggle. The Wisconsin senator's clerk was most of the time on the floor behind him, almost constantly counting the number of senators present. Whenever he found less than half of all the senators in their places, he wrote the words "no quorum" upon a slip of paper and laid it on the desk before his chief. Immediately Mr. La Follette renewed his demand for a call of the senate.

* * * *

For the most part Mr. La Follette contented himself with quiet talking or reading from documents, to save his voice. But now and then he warmed up to his work and his tones rang out clear and strong, filling every part of the senate chamber. Now and then he left his place and walked down the aisle toward the republican side, shaking his finger at the majority, of which he is a member but with whom he is unable to agree, and warning them that in making railroad bonds the basis of currency issue, in placing more and more power in the hands of the system and in creasing the tendency to the centralization of wealth in this country, they were sowing the wind only to reap the whirlwind. After an occasional impassioned outburst of this sort the keeper of the bridge relapsed into easier and calmer ways of speaking or reading from the huge stack of papers which rested upon his desk.

* * * *

As the afternoon and night wore on senators left the chamber and went out to get their dinners or other refreshments. Returning they found to their surprise and disgust that the Wisconsin man was going on as before. He seemed no more weary than at the beginning and his voice remained wonderfully clear and strong. His experience on the lecture platform appeared to be standing him in good stead and his habit of living on milk and nuts enabled him to go without his dinner without any great inconvenience. All day and evening Mr. La Follette insisted very often upon having order in the chamber. Whenever there was an unusual conversation or bustle on the floor or in the galleries he calmly called the attention of the chair to it and stood waiting like a little Ajax defying the lightning till quiet had been restored. Once he pointedly called attention to a whispered conversation which Leader Aldrich was having with another senator, and on another occasion he heard men talking out in the lobby and insisted that they be stilled before he would proceed. Even the angry senators, who would have liked to take the little man by the neck and choke him into silence, were compelled to admit that he had his nerve with him.

Nor could they help smiling, angry as they were, when he occasionally remarked: "There is no hurry. I have plenty of time before me. I can stand here six weeks if necessary. Why, gentlemen, I have not yet made a fair start upon my argument."

What a man says when he is talking against time is necessarily of little importance. He is judged by the quantity of his output, not by its quality. And quantitatively conditioned the output of Senator La Follette during the long afternoon and evening was quite enough to satisfy his listeners. In fact, it was too much, but the quality of it was not so bad, either. It was not a connected or logical argument. At times it was somewhat prosy, but now and then it was interesting enough and on the whole will take high rank in the annals of this sort of oratory, known only in "The most dignified legislative body on earth." From the currency bill Senator La Follette branched off to the railroad question, to the tariff, to reports of the interstate commerce commission, to almost everything under the heavens. "I do not want to leave anything out," he said, amidst smiles. "I want to do my full duty as my colleagues expect me to do it."

* * * *

Such long sustained effort, such great demand upon the vital resources, must be met with some sort of sustenance. Even the "Little Iron Man" from Wisconsin could not talk a dozen of hours at a stretch without food and drink. So he had brought to him from the senate restaurant—"refectory" is the official title—one turkey sandwhich after another and glass of milk upon glass of milk. Whenever Horatius felt the pangs of hunger or thirst he paused in his flow of words, gazed about the chamber, innocently remarked he feared a quorum was not present, and in view of the importance of this discussion he would like to have as many as possible of his colleagues present to receive education and enlightenment. While the roll was being called the endurance orator calmly munched his sandwich and sipped his bovine-nectar. At 11 o'clock tonight the count was the twenty-ninth call of the senate, the sixth turkey sandwich, the third hard boiled egg and the thirteenth glass of milk. As midnight approached the refreshed Horatius still held the bridge and the currency bill was as yet unpassed.

Men are afraid of very smart women.

PROCTER & GAMBLE P&G NAPHTHA SOAP

No Rosin in It

Nothing but high grade soap and naphtha in P. & G. Naphtha Soap.

The first thing you notice, when you unwrap a cake of P. & G. Naphtha Soap is the color of it—white.

That shows there is no rosin in it.

Most naphtha soaps are yellow—they contain rosin.

There is a saying among soap manufacturers to the effect that 5 per cent. rosin in soap is all right; more than 5 per cent. is all wrong.

Some naphtha soaps contain as much as 25% rosin. Do you know why? Rosin is cheap. That is why.

And so we offer this advice: Never buy any other than a white naphtha soap.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is white—there is no rosin in it.

5 cents a cake; worth more.

SAENGERBUND HAS MEETING SUNDAY

OFFICIALS GATHER TO TALK OVER FEST

OUTING TRIP IS CALLED OFF

Inclemency of Weather Interferes With Visit to Mr. Doerflinger's "Bob White" Farm

The meeting of the officers of the Saengerbund and the local officers of the Saengerfest was held yesterday afternoon at the Germania hall. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the trip to and meeting at the Doerflinger "Bob White" farm had to be abandoned. All the officers of the bund were present and the meeting was entirely successful. The officers expressed themselves as well pleased with the work of the local societies in preparing for the coming festival which is now a thing of interest in about seventy-five cities in the northwest. A private session of the officers of the bund was held at the Stoddard Saturday afternoon and the meeting yesterday was held in joint session with the local officers.

Matters regarding the coming festival were taken up and the members of the board spoke of the plans and recommended ideas in preparation for the meetings. Ex-Secretary C. F. Trettin of St. Paul was in attendance at the meeting and gave a short address on the means used in the preparation of the fest held at that city.

Two Want Next One.

It was understood at the meeting that the societies at Dubuque and Omaha will attend the fest with extra large delegations and make a strong fight for the next Saengerfest. While they have not stated their intentions of being candidates, reports have been received that they are preparing to make a strong fight at the business meeting the last day of the fest.

Secretary Utermoehl has received application from Decorah, Ia., and Postville, Ia., for accommodation at the fest, bringing the total now reported up to 60 societies, and about fifteen more are yet to be heard from.

Liederkranz Meets.

At a meeting of the Liederkranz singing society of this city held last evening Messrs. Otto Weland and B. Trepte, Sr., were elected delegates to the business meeting at the fest, each society will be represented by two delegates. President Utermoehl of the society appointed the following as a music committee to pick out the music for the reeharsals and attend to other business for the society. The committee is Pres. J. L. Utermoehl, Chas. Bitzer, H. O. Klein, Ed Schwartz and B. Trepte, Sr.

CELEBRATE 51ST WEDDING DAY

Mr. John Coady, detective of the local police department, and Mrs. fifty-first wedding anniversary at their ome, 617 Division street. Mr. and Mrs. Coady were married in La Crosse May 31, 7857, and have made their home in this city the entire time. During the day a large number of friends of the couple dropped in for congratulations and left many beautiful presents. The out-of-town guests wo attended were Mr. and Mrs. William Emenson of Minneapolis and Pat Dailey of Minneapolis, Richard McCarthy of St. Paul was a guest at the home during the past week but left Saturday morning for his home.

SALOON BURGLARIZED.

Some time late Friday night, the saloon of "Bash" Boma on south Third street was robbed of several dollars in cash together with several bottles of liquor. The robbery was not discovered until the next morning.

The police were notified and Phillip Smith, a negro was arrested charged with the burglary. He refused to plead guilty in county court this morning and his examination was set for 3 p. m. next Monday afternoon.

TO CLOSE SATURDAYS.

In accordance with the resolution passed by the common council last year all the offices in the city hall will be closed at 1 o'clock o nSaturdays during the months of June, July and August. The first Saturday to be effective by this ruling will be Junt 6 when all the offices will close for the day at 1 o'clock. At the next meeting of the council it is expected a resolution will be brought up and include the month of September in the list.

SMALL FIRE AT TANNERY.

Fire caused by spontaneous combustion caused damage to the amount of $50 at the Davis, Medary & Platz tannery early Sunday morning. Box No. 125 was turned in and departments No. 1 and 3 responded. The fire was located on the second story of the main building in a small room used as a dry room. The fire was extinguished with the chemicals and the damage was confined to the one room.

FIRST JUNE WEDDING.

The first June wedding license was issued today to Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, widow of "Nigger" Nathan Smith, and Mr. Phillip Bay of this city.

Mrs. Smith has been married twice according to her application for the license but this is the groom's first venture.

Despite the fact that this is the first day of the month the number of couples seeking "happiness" was few.

NEW BADGER SENATOR

Political circles were somewhat agitated this morning when it became known there was a new senator in Wisconsin—and here at La Crosse. Politicians, newspaper correspondents and others discovered that a boy had been born to Senator and Mrs. Thomas Morris.

Gifts for June Brides, Commencement Presents

We are well within the bounds of truth when we say that there never has been shown in La Crosse before such an extraordinary array of silver and cut glass, suitable for bridal gifts; of the newest "silver novelties" for commencement presents, as you can now see here.

BADGER BOYS IN YALE EXERCISES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 1.—The first of the Yale commencement exercises began today with the celebration of the anniversary, and the graduation programs of the divinity and art schools. The Morsick prize contest in sermonic elocution was held today. Harry S. Martin, of Spring Valley, who spoke on "The Leavening Power," Phillip B. Whitehead, of Janesville, Wis., on "The Girdle of Truth."

Walter Lewis Ferris, of Oakpark, Ill., won the first prize. Philip B. Whitehead, of Janesville, won second. Whitehead is a son of Senator Whitehead.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP; BELMONT IN LONDON

NEW YORK, June 1.—Gravesend race track is the Mecca today for all race-goers. The rich Brooklyn handicap, yorth $25,000, will be the feature. Ten horses, one of the smallest fields ever started, are entered. Celt, J. R. Keane's 3 year old colt, has command of the betting.

Belmont at Derby.

LONDON, June 1.—August Belmont arrived here today to see his big American bred colt, Norman Yii, run in the English derby, for which he is ow favorite in the betting. Belmont, it is said, will try to sign Danny Maher, the American jockey, to ride forhim.

FOOT OF SNOW JUNE 1.

ELY, Nev., June 1.—This section of Nevada had the heaviest snow fall of the year last night when twelve inches fell. Reports from the surrounding country show the snow was general, and considerable damage has been done.

METHODISTS FINISH TODAY.

BALTIMORE, June 1.—The quadrennial session of the general conference of the Methodists will close its deliberations tonight. Much business of a routine nature remains to be transacted. An important matter not yet disposed of is discipline concerning amusements. Dr. James M. Buckley today defeated a plan to have the church establish the second Sunday in May as "Mothers' day."

In the presence of 750 members of the conference and visitors the eight new bischops of the Mthodist Episcopal church were consecrated yesterday afternoon at the Lyric.

TO BEAT POMMERN RECORD

Quincy, Ill., June 1.—The "Chicago," the largest balloon in the world, will arsend late this afternoon in an effort to break the record flight of the German war balloon Pommern last fall. C. A. Coey of Chicago president of the American Federation of Aero Clubs, a pilot and one companion will make the flight. The balloon is of 110,000 cubic feet capacity.

NOT GUNNESS' ALLY

LA PORTE, Ind., June 1.—The authorities here discredit the "confession" by J. G. Truelson at Vernon, Texas, that he and Ray Lamphere were active accomplices of Mrs. Belle Gunness in the "murder trust" here. The story coincides with the evidence in minor respects, but does not stand close scrutiny, the prosecutor says. Sheriff Smitzer is expected to arrive here today; but Truelson is not with him.

Why He Chose the Rambler

The other day an agent for the richest corporation in the world was directed to purchase 3 automobiles for utility service in the state of California. He examined many cars selling at all prices. Considering his resources, he might have paid thousands for each car. Instead he considered his needs and bought three Ramblers. Why the Rambler Automobile?

Because he needed a powerful car built for the hardest kind of steady service, simple in construction and of few parts; therefore easy to care for; an enclosed power plant, therefore not subjest to injury from dirt, mud and water and economical in fuel consumption; therefore not costly in upkeep—in short, a car built for good, bad and hilly roads alike—a car that would be good for years of service.

These facts, aside from the reputation of the manufacturer, which is considered, decided him in favor of the Rambler.

You cannot afford to be any less discriminating when you choose a car for your own use.

The Car of Steady Service

Let us prove it. May we call at your home tomorrow morning and take you to your place of business in this Rambler Touring Car?

"MUDHEN JOE'S" JOINT IS RAIDED

"ROOMING HOUSE SALOON" IS ENTERED BY POLICE

PROPRIETOR IS FINED $206

Offers to Pay $6.00 but Undersheriff's Hearing Proves Bad and So He is Locked Up

About 10:30 Saturday night when La Crosse's lewd element is in the zenith of its activity a raid was made by the police on the saloon and rooming place conducted by Joe Gyrion, better known as "Mudhen Joe," located on the corner of Frant and Pearl streets.

This is the first action that has been taken to enforce the recent "closing order" issued by the chief of police.

As a result of the raid "Mudhen Joe" was haled into court this morning on a charge of letting rooms for immoral purposes and he pleaded guilty. He was given the minimum penalty which was $200, or six months in the county jail, and $6 costs.

Through some misunderstanding the resort keeper was under the impression that the fine was $6.00 and when he left the court room with the undersheriff he jingled the dollars in his pocket with an air of "Oh! this is easy." The sheriff upon reaching his office started to lock him up in the "cage."

"You ain't going to lock me up are you?" queried Joe, "I can pay my fine."

"Oh, that's a different proposition," laughed Undersheriff Mohr, "well come across with the two hundred and six."

"What!" gasped the prisoner, "why the judge only said $6.00."

"Huh! I guess the batteries on your hearing are weak, you got the costs mixed with the fine. Come on, this way in."

The couple taken out of the house Saturday night were each fined $10 and costs.

AERO PLANE FALLS

ROME, June 1.—Only the fact that his aeroplane was but twelve feet in the air at the time saved Leon De Lagrange from probably fatal injuries today. He was sailing the ship in the Piazzi Di Armi and to avoid a collision with the grand stand where Queen Dowager Margherita and Crown Prince Constantine of Greene, and many notables, were seated, he brought the machine to a sudden stop, causing it to fall to the ground. He received a severe shaking up.

ARREST COTTON KING

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Bencuh warrants were issued today by the supreme court of the District of Columbia for T. H. Price, the millionaire "cotton king," Moses Haas and Frederick A. Peckham of New York, for removal to Washington to answer indictments in connection with the "leak" on the cotton reports by the department of agriculture. The warrants will be sent to the district attorney's office in New York for service.

AUTO WRECK FATAL

NEW YORK, June 1.—W. P. Goubeaud and Thomas Nolan, of Brooklyn, were instantly killed by the overturning of their auto on Ocean Parkway at 4 o'clock this morning. Five men were in the machine driven by John Lanyan. The police say the car was going at a terrific speed. Victor Brandies and James McKenna, passengers, were also severely injured.

OLDFIELD'S WIFE SPEED VICTIM

LOWELL, Mass., June 1.—Barney Oldfield's wife is dying, and Oldfield and Joseph O'Brien are painfully injured as the result of his car fouling another auto and skidding into a tree when going at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

IS MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY

NEENAH, Wis., June 1.—Discovery of the body of Peter Hjetberg, 22 years old, at the rear of a livery stable here with a deep wound on the head has established a mystery which county and city officials are trying to fathom. Wounds on the head and the fact that $300, a valuable gold watch and a diamond ring, which were in Hjetberg's possession, cannot be found, lead the police to believe the man was murdered.

WELLMAN'S STORY OF THE FINAL COUP

ative. If "Gum Shoe Bill" Stone of Missouri had been a little more watchful and if Sly Steve Elkins had not artfully engaged him in a prolonged conversation in the cloakroom at a critical moment there might be a different story to tell Gum Shoe Bill slipped down. Aldrich worked a clever trick. Vice President Fairbanks wavered, but in the end played a Czar Reed-like game, dominated by the influence of the clever and desperate Aldrich, and it was all over. The bridge was rushed and victory perched upon the banners of the republican hosts. Horatius La Follette, after breaking all records for long distance talking, and refreshing himself with a fatal sleep, came upon the scene ten minutes too late, just in time to hold a post mortem upon the remains of his most sensational performance in the national arena.

The currency bill being out of the way, both houses passed resolutions to adjourn sine die at 11:50 tonight, and at that hour the long session of the Sixtieth congress came to an end. President Roosevelt signed the currency bill a few minutes before adjournment and the members of the commission provided for by the bill were announced. For the senate Vice President Fairbanks appointed Senators Aldrich, Allison, Burrows, Hale, Knox, Daniel, Teller, Money and Bailey. Speaker Cannon appointed as house members of the commission Messrs. Vreeland of New York, Overstreet of Indiana, Burton of Ohio, Weeks of Massachisetts, Bonynge of Colorado, Smith of California, republicans; Padgett of Tennessee, Burgess of Texas and Pujo of Louisiana, democrats.

* * * *

Nothing sharper or cleverer, judged purely from the standpoint of success, was ever seen in the senate chamber than the trick which Aldrich played to win the day. The plan was laid late last night and only a convenient opportunity was waited to put it in action. A veteran employe of the senate chamber remembered that a quarter of a century ago, when Mr. Anthony was presiding over the senate, a similar trick had been worked. It was decided to try it again. Not a very complex or difficult game, but one requiring the complicity of several persons, including the presiding officer to a certain extent. Under the rules it cannot be interrupted by any other business whatsoever. The charm of the trick lies in catching the filibustering squad napping just a moment, just long enough to start the calling of the roll by the clerk, and the thing is done.

Senator La Follette gave way to Senator Stone of Missouri a few minutes after 7 o'clock this morning, having held the floor for a little more than seventeen hours, most of the time being on his feet and either reading or talking. He was wonderfully fresh to the end, and if he could have foreseen the outcome of his rest, it is doubtful if he would have yielded the floor even to this hour so determined was he to prolong the struggle to the bitter end. But, having the assurance of Senator Stone that the floor should be held, the little man from Wisconsin went home and had a good sleep. Senator Stone held the floor with a rambling speech, occasionally interrupted, till near 1 o'clock, when he gave way to Senator Gore. The blind senator had no intention of engaging in a filibustering expedition. He only wanted to air his views on currency, the tariff, the centralization of wealth, the manner in which government funds are farmed out to the interests in New York and a variety of other questions. He made an effective speech, which was listened to by one of the largest audiences of the session. His voice strangely resembles that of William McKinley, and his shrill, but unpleasant tones rang through the senate chamber for more than two hours. While he was speaking Senator Stone whispered to him that he was in the cloakroom ready to come on duty at a moment's notice. The alert Aldrich noticed this manuever and straightway sent oily Steve Elkins to show the man from Missouri something nice in the way of a hold-up conversation.

* * * *

As soon as Gore sat down Aldrich, standing in the center aisle, only a few feet from the presiding officer's rostrum, quickly moved that a vote be taken on t he motion to adopt the conferees' report on the currency bill and on that he demanded the yeas and nays. Before Vice President Fairbanks could more than half finish a statement of the question and while the words were still falling from his lips the hair-trigger clerk having received his instructions from the leader of the senate, began singing out: "Mr. Aldrich!" "Yea!" "Mr. Allison!" "Mr. Ankeny!" "Mr. Bacon!"

In a twinkling the senate chamber was in a great uproar. Senators rushed to and fro Men came running out of the cloakrooms, among them the lank form of "Gum Shoe Bill," followed by the rotund and smiling face of Steve Elkins. Three or four men were prepared to protest and to demand the floor. But it was too late—everlastingly too late. The magic roll call had begun, and, under the rule, if enforced with an iron hand, nothing on earth could interrupt that. And there stood Aldrich and behind him the old guard of republicans, victorious in a score of great frays, determined that they should be enforced.

* * * *

For a moment and a moment only the result was in doubt. This was when Senator Heyburn of Idaho rose and interrupted the roll call and demanded the floor. He was reminded by the presiding officer that the call of the roll had begun, and that it could not be interrupted.

"But I rose in my place,' shouted Mr. Heyburn, now thoroughly angry, "and demanded the recognition of the chair in a loud voice before the call of the roll was begun."

"Regular order," shouted the republican leaders and the clerk was going on with his call of names. "Mr. President,' said Senator Heyburn, in a voice ringing with indignation and determination, "I rise to a question of personal privilege. We shall see who can be deprived of his rights in this chamber." The latter remark was addressed to Aldrich and the other republicans who surrounded him and begged him to sit down.

Vice President Fairbanks hesitated.

"The chair has no recollection of hearing the demand of the senator from Idaho for recognition,' he said, "but if the senator states that he did address the chair, he will be recognized."

"But that cannot be done, Mr. President," urged Aldrich. "Because under the rulesa roll call cannot be interrupted for debate or any other business, and the call of roll had begun and several senators had answered to their names.' And Hale and Foraker and others murmured in echo, "That cannot be done."

This was the crucial moment. If Heyburn were recognized and made his short speech explaining why he as a republican voted against the bill all would be lost, the trick would fail. Gum Shoe Bill was now in the chamber ready to stand guard. The vice president hesitated again, cleared his throat and in a voice which showed how little he liked the part the exigencies of the case called upon him to play said: "The clerk will proceed with the roll call."

Again the nimble clerk needed no urging. Like a flash he was off again with his "Mr. Bailey," "Mr. Bankhead," "Mr. Beveridge," "Mr. Borah." The long struggle was over. The bridge had been rushed. The currency bill was as good as passed.

* * * *

At this juncture Mr. La Follette came upon the scene. He was too late. His face was livid with rage. His voice trembled as he rose during the roll call and asked if a parliamentary inquiry was in order. Aldrich and Foraker and Hale promptly reminded him and the presiding officer that it was not. The obliging clerk went on with the call of the names. Then, raising both his arm and his voice, the senator from Wisconsin in a manner dramatic enough to do full justice to the traditions of his family, sang out, drowning the tones of the clerk and the cofnusion and bustle in t he chamber, packed from floor to roof with an excited multitude:

"Mr. President!" No response save the voice of the clerk.

"Mr. President!" Again no other reply than the call of the names of a few more senators.

"Mr. President!" thundered the little man from Wisconsin, "I rise to a question of order." This time the clerk stopped and the presiding officer turned his head toward the speaker. "I wish to make a parliamentary inquiry."

"The senator from Wisconsin is out of order."

"And from that decision of the chair I appeal," said La Follette.

"And I move to lay that motion on the table," from Mr. Foraker.

In a few minutes the machine had rolled on another stage of its victorious way, and for a brief season the leader of the great filibustering expedition subsided. But not for long.

* * * *

He tried to secure the recognition of the chair for, asking if he changed his voice from nay to yea, he could then move to reconsider. The chair declined to enlighten him, and the republicans cried for the regular order. Nevertheless Mr. La Follette changed his vote, and at the conclusion of the roll call tried to get recognition to move a reconsideration. Mr. Aldrich addressed the chair at the same moment, whereupon Mr. La Follette in passionate tones declared that he was entitled to recognition because he had been standing at his place, while the senator from Rhode Island was not at his place as required by the rules. This was manifestly true, as Mr. Aldrich was at that moment standing in the center aisle, far away from his seat. Notwithstanding this the vice president recognized Mr. Aldrich. As the senator from Wisconsin took his seat the galleries broke into long and continued applause for the gallant effort which he had made. The senator refused to reconsider the vote, and one of the most desperate blockades ever seen in the senate chamber came to an end.

* * * *

Senator Heyburn was so angry when Aldrich shut him out in order to complete the coup that he told the Rhode Island senator in tones loud enough to be heard in the galleries that he held Aldrich personally responsible for the outrage. Resourceful to the last, Mr. Aldrich sent a number of senators to Heyburn to mollify him, and later on he was given a chance to make the explanation of his vote in the negative. Only four republican senators voted against their party—Mr. Heyburn of Idaho, and his colleague, Mr. Borah, Mr. Brown of Nebraska and Mr. Bourne of Oregon. Mr. Burkett of Nebraska and one or two more had threatened to stand out against the bill, but decided at the last moment to go with their party.

At the conclusion of the long battle Mr. Aldrich was warmly congratulated by many senators, both republicans and democrats, upon his successful leadership. The place of Mr. Aldrich as the ablest general manager the United States senate ever had is now fixed beyond peradventure.

As for the loser in this sensational combat, Mr. La Follette, there is now great anxiety among the republican leaders as to what he may do in the coming campaign. They fear he may actually take the stump for his friend, Mr. Bryan. This is one of the reasons why the leaders decided not to make the personal attack upon him, and upon his motives in leading this filibuster which they had last night contemplated.

TRAVELING MAN ROBBED OF $900

GRIP CONTAINING JEWELRY IS LOOTED AT CROOKSTON

SNEAK THIEF DOES TRICK

Shadows Drummer and as Grip Is Placed in Hall He Gathers Loot and Disappears

CROOKSTON, Minn., June 1.—P. R. Randolph, traveling salesman for Benjamin Allen Co. of Chicago, was robbed Saturday night of a grip containing $900 worth of bracelets, rings and jewelry, by a sneak thief who left no trace behind. Randolph arrived here Saturday night from Leeds, N. D., on the Northern Pacific, and sent his grip into the hall leading to the sample rooms. The janitor saw it there, and he was passing up and down the hall at intervals.

About half an hour later Randolph arrived to get his grip, and it was missing. It was small, of black leather, eighteen by twelve inches, and contained four trays.

The thief is believed to have followed Randolph from Leeds, where the grip was last opened, and entered the hotel through the alley entrance.

FARMERS BURN GAS

PIERRE, S. D., June 1.—Farmers in the vicinity of Okobojo, 20 miles north of this city are taking advantage of the gas supply which can be secured with the artesian flow in that part of the state to cut out their bills for fuel, lights and gasoline about their buildings. The wells can be secured at a cost of about $1,500. A dozen have been sunk within the last two years, and the man who owns such a well can be assured not only of a strong supply of water at all times, but the gas, which is the main object in the investment.

WEEKLY TORNADO COMES.

CLINTON, Ia., June 1.—Another of the tornadoes which have been weekly occurrences in this section this spring, passed over Clinton, traveling so high in the air that no damage was done in this city. The town of McCausland, in Scott county, was hit by the twister, however, and barns, sheds and windmills on the Alfred Lowry farm, and on neighboring tracts of land, were razed to the ground by the fury of the storm. The Lowry farm is owned by Charles Howe of De Witt.

FOUND AFTER 40 YEARS

YANKTON, S. D., June 1.—After forty years, and by dint of many inquiries, Mrs. J. W. Shufeld of this city, has found a sister, Mrs. Thos. Bordman, whom she has located in Oakland, Cal., where she is living with her son, Rev. Harry Boardman, a prominent Baptist minister, of that place. The two sisters were parted in 1868 and had lost all track and knowledge of each other since that year until this week.

DIES PLAYING AT GRAVES.

MILFORD, Neb., June 1.—Exhausted by the long march to the cemetery, W. Allen, a veteran who had come here from Geneva to participate in the Memorial day exercises, dropped dead while playing a dead march on the fife.

Allen was urged to ride, as it was feared the walk would be too much for him, but he insisted on marching. After starting to play the dead march he sat down, complaining of pains, and died in a few minutes.

CHANCE SHOT IS FATAL

WATERLOO, Iowa, June 1.—Clarence Strain, twenty years old, a resident of Freemont, is dying from a bullet wound in the forehead accidentally inflicted by boys who were hunting.

NORTHWEST IN BRIEF

FERGUS FALLS, Minn.—The Memorial day exercises here were unusual this year. Instead of the customary address a program was arranged under the auspices of the city schools and the members of the Grand Army and Women's Relief corps and citizens generally attended. The program consisted of music by the band, recitations and a flag drill. Owing to the wet weather and soft ground the exercises were held in the assembly room of the high school. The veterans then took carriages to Mount Faith cemetery, where the graves were decorated.

PIERRE, S. D.—Memorial day was generally observed by the closing of business houses for the afternoon and the program carried out by the G. A. R. in decoration of graves of the old soldiers and a memorial service at the Auditorium, in which school children took part. The weather was perfect.

SLEEPY EYE, Minn.—Memorial day exercises attracted a large crowd. Dr. Riley of Minneapolis delivered a strong address on "Three Great Political Questions." A program was given by the school children.

FARGO, N. D.—Gov. Burke's speech was the special feature of the Decoration day services. The veterans decorated the graves of their dead comrades and at the post the formal services were held prior to the governor's address.

BLUE EARTH, Minn.—J. T. McCleary of Mankato spoke at the Memorial day services held in the opera house here.

TODAY'S GRAIN GOSSIP

GRAIN OPINIONS.

Ware and Leland: Statistics today expected to be of bullish character.

McKenna and Rodgers: Believe sales on bulges for next month will be in order.

Pringle F. & R.: Think atmosphere will clear up enough to make Sept. wheat at 87c look attractive.

Logan Bryan: Short selling of wheat on a decline like that of past two days looks uninviting.

Finley Barrell Co.: Believe wheat should again prove a sale.

A. J. White & Co.: Believe sales of July wheat on bulges will prove profitable.

ODDS ARE FAVORING PAPKE IN BOUT

MILWAUKEE June 1.—In spite of the fact that Stanley Ketchel is almost down to weight and will enter the ring in grand condition, the betting public is giving Billy Papke a whole lot of consideration, and close students of the game here are laying money that the Illinois Thunderbolt will win from the Westerner when they meet here next Thursday night. According to reports from Spring Lake, where Papke is training, the Spring Valley wonder has improved a hundred per cent since his last battle with Hugo Kelly, and is in shape to whip any one short of Tommy Burns.

There is nothing but confidence, however, at the Ketchel training camp on the Whitefish bay road. The conqueror of Joe Thomas and the Sullivan twins cannot see where Papke has anything on him, and says he is going to bet a large chunk of his bank roll on himself.

The climate in the Middle West is a great deal different from that on the Pacific coast, and Ketchel is finding no difficulty whatever in making weight. nI fact, he is drinking quarts of milk and eating fattening food every day to keep his weight up. He was said to be away above weight when he landed and there was some question as to his ability to make the weight. He stepped on the scales yesterday just to show where he was at, and tipped the beam at 158 pounds, just four pounds above the figure he has to make by 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. tI would take him about two hours to get down to the required notch if it were necessary.

VIROQUAN'S CHILD DIES.

VIROQUA, June 1.—Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Purdy received the news Friday of the death of their oldest son, Will, at Chippewa Falls, and on Saturday morning left for that city to bring home the remains.

Farmers Are Worried Over Super Abundance of Rain, and It May Interfere With Crops

The local markets are about changeless since Saturday. The first cantaloupes of the season are on the market at a shilling apiece.

The farmers are complaining about the abundant rainfall and a good many have been unable to plant their corn. The situation is really beginning to look serious and if a few sunny days do not happen along before long the farmers fear that corn will be a sarce article next fall.

SILK CROP BURDEN OF THE JAPANESE

TACOMA, Wash., June 1.—With 40,000 bales of raw silk from last season yet unsold and the crop of the present year almost ready for market, trade conditions in Japan are highly unsatisfactory, according to C. N. Dahl, Norwegian consul at Tokio, who has just arrived from Japan. He declared the old crop remaining in the hands of the brokers has an estimated value of two hundred millions.

SHERIFF IS SHOT FROM AMBUSH

LAMARIE, Wyo., June 1.—An armed posse today is pursuing Charles Summers who shot and killed Sheriff Bath, this county, from ambush near Walden, Col., just across the line. The sheriff was shot down without warning, while he was hunting for Summers with a posse. Threats of lynching are being made.

DE LA GRANGE WINS PRIZE.

ROME, June 1.—De La Grange won the $800 prize offered in the aeroplane contests here this morning. He was in the same machine in which he made a trial flight before King Victor Emmanuel early in the week. He covered nearly eight miles in 15 minutes and 26 seconds. This is the best flight officially recorded.

LAUGH AND SING AFTER SENTENCE

GAPINSKI MURDERERS TAKE IT ALL AS A JOKE

ENJOY LAST SUNDAY IN JAIL

Will Go to Waupun Today for Long Terms—All Are in Good Spirits and Are Glad to Go

MILWAUKEE, June 1—If you had been sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, would you be so cheerful about it as to laugh and sing while you were waiting to be taken to prison to begin your sentence?

Hardly. Yet that is what Joseph Marusik, Frank Szymczak and Jacob Zajaczkowski have been doing since sentence was imposed on them for the murder of Dominic Gapinski, treasurer of the Skarb Pobieski Building and Loan association.

They talked freely and laughed while on their way back to the county jail after being sentenced, and their attitude has been the same since. Yesterday, the last Sunday they will pass outside of the prison walls for many a year, they continued to be apparently indifferent to their fate, and passed the day as they might have done in their own homes.

VENGEANCE IS TAKEN BY FATHER

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., June 1.—After traveling forty miles on foot in search of his daughter, William Offner of Ladysmith, found her at Chetek, and learning that one of the employes of a circus, which was exhibiting there had enticed her from her home, he started out to enforce the unwritten law. Offner found his man at the tent and he then proceeded to belabor him with his fists until officers interfered. Burrington, the alleged enticer, was arrested and taken to Ladysmith for trial. Offner was released by the Chetek officers the sentiment being in his favor.

WELSH IS VICTOR OVER PHIL BROCK

WELSH LOS ANGELES, June 1.—Eight thousand, including 200 women, witnessed Saturday's sport at Jim Jeffries' prize fight arena. Freddie Welsh,, a Welsh boy, trained by his sister on a vegetarian diet, won the main event, a twenty-five-round contest with Phil Brock, a 2 to 1 favorite. Welsh outclassed his opponent and outpointed him in every round but two, but was unable to knock him out. Brock bled from the mouth, nose and eye in the third and every subsequent round, his features being often indistinguishable from the blood which covered him.

ORDINARY CLOTHES OR NO DIPLOMA

FON DU LAC, Wis., June 1.—The pupils in the Eighth grade at Washington school must wear their ordinary clothes on the closing day of school if they wish to receive diplomas on that day. Miss Minnie S. Perkins, assistant principal of the school, informed her pupils that vanity and education did not work together and if any of them put on their "Sunday suits" or dresses they will be obliged to call at her back door on the following morning to get a certificate.

MOTHER KILLED AS SHE LEAVES CHURCH

INSANE LOVER OF DAUGHTER COMMITS AWFUL ACT

FOLLOWS WOMEN FROM PEW

In Presence of Horrified Congregation Mrs. E. H. Orvis is Shot by Her Daughter's Lover

OAKFIELD, Wis., June 1.—While attending services at the Methodist church Grant Poole, aged about 35 years, shot and killed Mrs. E. H. Orvis, a leading resident of the village. The Rev. Sabin Halsey had completed the services by pronouncing the benediction and went to the vestibule door to shake hands with the members of the congregation as they left the church. Poole occupied a pew in the church directly in front of Mrs. Orvis and followed her to the door. Mrs. Orvis was about to shake hands with Mr. Halsey when Poole pulled a revolver, firing three shots in rapid succession, one bullet entering the heart, causing almost instant death. Mrs. Orvis fell back into the arms of her husband.

Prays for Dying Woman

Mr. Halsey asked the congregation to remain and offer prayer for the dying woman. The congregation was, however, panic stricken and fled from the church in haste. The pastor remained and prayed over the body.

For some time Poole has been trying to win the affections of Miss Grace Orvis, aged 25 years. It is reported that the parents informed Poole of their objections to his actions toward their daughter, and it is presumed that this was the cause of the deed.

Poole is Captured

Poole escaped but was caught several hours later on a farm about seven miles from Oakfield. He was taken to Fond du Lac, the sheriff fearing attempts of lynching at Oakfield.

LETTER CARRIERS ELECT OFFICERS

OSHKOSH, Wis., June 1.—The fifth annual convention of the Wisconsin Rural Letter Carriers' association was concluded with the following election of officers:

President—R. M. Kearney, Milwaukee.

Vice President—John Cowling, Oshkosh.

Secretary—E. L. Demarest, Waupaca.

Treasurer—H. L. Gilman, Plymouth.

Organizer—G. A. Crissey, Hilbert.

Sergeant-at-arms—George Burmeister, Waukesha.

Delegates to the national convention at Omaha in October, 1908—G. A. Cressey, Hilbert; E. L. Demarest, Waupaca; George O. Alger, Oshkosh; R. M. Kearney, Milwaukee.

Executive committee—H. A. Propp, Wauwatosa; Joseph Weinfurter, Kewaunee.

TOWN IS SAVED BY THE CITIZENS

GILLETT, Wis., June 1.—The citizens of Gillette were called out to assit the firemen in saving the village from destruction by fire. Starting in the opera house and with the wind blowing a terrible gale, which carried large fire brands throughout the town, the fire swept along fercely. Several barns caught, but by quick work of the citizens with pails of water, the fire was stopped before any other great damage was done. The opera house was burned to the ground, and the fire houses, village chamber and jail, were slightly damaged by fire.

KOREAN REBELLION IS STILL GROWING

SEOUL, June 1.—If Japan hopes to crush out the Korean rebellion with anything like dispatch she will have to send several times the number of troops that are now in the field. While detached companies of soldiers have been able to repulse the Koreans and inflict great loss of life, the rebellion seems in no measure to have weakened. The persist ence with which the Koreans have held out has greatly enraged the Japanese and the Mikado is being urged to take extreme measures. The Japanese press has tired of publishing colored reports and truth is reaching the people.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

APPLETON—At the request of tht manufacturers of the city, Chief of the Fire Department McGillan will recommend the immediate purchase of another fire engine.

BELOIT—Harry Rivers, a South Dakota farmer and a member of the old Fourth Wisconsin battery, grasped the hand of W. L. Austin, a comrade in arms, on Saturday in the first meeting of the old soldier friends in forty-three years. Mr. Rivers was mustered out with the battery and said good by to his comrades forty-three years ago, and he has not been in Beloit since that time until on Saturday. He enlisted at Clinton.

CHIPPEWA FALLS—The asylum trustees of Wisconsin will meet in Menomonie on June 9, 10 and 11, and it is expected that every asylum in the state will be represented. Among those who will address the convention are: Allen D. Conover, president of the state board of control; Dr. L. N. Howieson, Menomonie; Mrs. S. H. Bull, Racine; Dr. R. M. Phelps, assistant superintendent of Rochester, Minn, state hospital; Dr. W. A. Gordon, superintendent Northern hospital, Oshkosh, Wis.; Mrs. G. A. Downer, Appleton; O. W. Mosher, New Richmond; Prof. S. Moore, Madison; L. Weigand, Cleveland, Wis.

BELOIT—W. J. H. Strong has been acquitted in a Kankakee court of the charge of misrepresenting the condition of a plant $10,000 worth of stock which he had sold to a Michigan man. Strong formerly lived in Beloit.

CHIPPEWA FALLS—Frank Freeman, employed on the Stephens farm near Jewett, while dynamiting stumps fixed the fuse into the dynamite cap. The cap exploded and blew two fingers off the left hand. Near him were about fifty pounds of dynamite. Fortunately the cap was not attached to the dynamite.
